

Oracle University Workforce Development Program

Oracle University's Workforce Development Program (WDP) empowers colleges and universities to upskill students to the cloud, put their learning to practice, and future-proof their careers.

What is SLS?

Part of WDP, Oracle Student Learning Subscription (SLS) is an all-digital, all-online solution designed for colleges and universities to help students:

- Learn new cloud skills that today's employers demand.
- Gain knowledge with step-by-step demonstrations and real-world examples.
- Validate skills and showcase valuable Oracle credentials that employers respect.
- Incorporate SLS Learning Paths into college degree programs.

Why SLS?

If your student base aspires to learn on-demand cloud skills and become certified Oracle Cloud experts, SLS should be a central component of your existing educational offering.

SLS dynamic courses—complete with Oracle University courseware and Oracle software—add value and depth to every kind of learning program imaginable—from continuing education courses to college degree programs.

What's more, by including training for desirable job skills and key roles such as Java Developer, Cloud Database Administrator, Machine Learning Specialist, Cloud Database Developer, Applications Consultant and more, SLS offers holistic cloud training on the go.

Key Cloud Roles

- Java Developer
- Cloud Database Administrator
- Cloud Database Developer
- Cloud Application Developer
- Cloud Administrator (OCI)
- Data Scientist
- Blockchain Developer
- Business Intelligence Analyst
- Applications Analyst
- Applications Consultant

Why do students need Oracle Learning?

Because Oracle products are everywhere:

- Over 400,000 customers in over 175 countries benefitting from Oracle solutions.
- There are nearly one million certified Oracle Java developers worldwide today, a career choice ranking second in a recent Glassdoor "Best Jobs in America" list.
- Learning Oracle Cloud skills can advance your career.
